NORTH CHINA AGAIN AT BRINK OF WAR

Death Toll In a Ten Hour
Fight at Langfang
Believed High

By The Associated Press.
PEIPING, China, July 26.—Twenty Japanese were killed, their army command said, when three troop lorries were blown up by hand grenades in fighting within Peiping today, near the southwest gate of the walled city. One Chinese policeman was killed and another injured.

TIENSIN, China, July 26.—Japanese army headquarters reported tonight that a battle was raging at a rate in Peiping's outer wall after Chinese permitted half a column of Japanese troops to enter the gate and then fired on them.

The Japanese column of about 500 men intended to enter Peiping by the southwest gate to "protect Japanese citizens." The Japanese here said the Chinese announced they would permit the entry, then let half the Japanese troops come in and opened up with machine guns and grenades.

Heavy Japanese casualties were reported both inside and outside the gate.

(There already is a Japanese embassy guard of about 500 men in Peiping.)

(The Japanese news agency, Domei, said at 2 a. m. today that the fighting continued at the south west corner of Peiping. The same dispatch, from Tientsin to Shanghai, said the authorities of the Japanese concession at Tientsin had closed the iron gates, isolating the section from the rest of the city, and had declared a state of emergency, and had called Japanese volunteers to patrol duty.)

TIENSIN, China, July 26.—Japan's army rekindled the military fires of North China today with bombs and bullets and demanded in a formal ultimatum that Chinese troops quit Peiping and its embattled environs quickly or face a "drastic" campaign of punitive action. This left North China teetering again on the brink of war.

Japanese military planes, preceding words with action, blasted barracks of the 35th Chinese army division at Langfang, midway on the Peiping-Tientsin railroad, and strafed fleeing units of the Chinese 113th infantry brigade as they fled pell-mell along the right of way, after a ten hour battle for Langfang. Peiping was in a panic. Most of the city's gates were shut. The death toll was believed high.

Lieut. Gen. Kiyoshi Katsuki, commander-in-chief of the Japanese North China army, demanded of General Sung Cheh-Yuan, Chinese warlord in the Hopeh-Chahar district:

1. That all units of the 37th division of the 29th Chinese army withdraw southward to Changhsien from the Lukouchiao-Wanglingsien area southwest of Peiping before noon Tuesday.
 2. That all other 37th units now in Peiping or in the west barracks garrison withdraw west of the Yungting river by noon Wednesday.
- Otherwise, said the Japanese general, there will be drastic punitive action by the Japanese army. Already, General Katsuki let it be known, all available Japanese strength was drawn up for such a punitive campaign.

General Sung, the Chinese warlord who commands both the 29th army and the Hopeh-Chahar political council, was reported without confirmation to have refused the Japanese ultimatum and to have ordered his men: "Resist!"

The situation apparently, was more acute than at any time since the first flare-up, July 7, when Japanese and Chinese troops clashed at the Marco Polo bridge west of Peiping.

War Minister General Gen Suzyama told an emergency Tokyo cabinet session he would deal "most firmly" with the Chinese.

Measures were taken to provide funds and prepare the Japanese fleet in Chinese waters for eventualities.

Chinese Claim Attack
The foreign office of the Nan-king (central) Chinese government accused Japan of merely having "marked time for a suitable excuse to recommence major operations" in North China.

Chinese said the Langfang battle started when Japanese attacked troops of the 35th division en route to Peiping to take over the Chinese garrison from the 37th in accordance with Japanese demands.

Japanese, however, declared the attack was in reprisal for a Chinese assault against a Japanese signal corps detachment which was attempting to restore military telephone service.

INSURGENT DRIVES FORCE LOYALISTS INTO RETREAT

Barcelona Counts 65 Dead and 150 Wounded In An Air Raid

By The Associated Press.

MADRID, July 26.—Insurgent and government troops were locked in fierce combat west of Madrid today, with government defenders trying to check the insurgent drive on Villanueva De La Canada, vital communications center.

Opposing commanders threw the full power of their war machines into a battle which followed the insurgent capture of Brunete, tip of the government wedge in the western front.

While artillery pounded opposing lines and infantrymen met in hand-to-hand encounters, one of the biggest air battles of the war took place near Villanueva.

Forty insurgent bombers clashed with a squadron of government pursuit planes. The insurgents fled after a "dog fight" in which, the government said, two insurgent ships were shot down.

An insurgent trimotor bomber was downed near Escorial, northwest of Madrid, shortly after midnight. The government said marks on the engines indicated they were manufactured in the United States.

MADRID, July 26.—Government Spanish armies retreated on two fronts today in the face of powerful insurgent attacks.

The front west of Madrid shifted to Villanueva de la Canada after General Jose Miaja's government forces were driven from Brunete yesterday by a withering insurgent attack.

Both sides have massed more men and more gunpower there than for any other battle of the civil war.

Villanueva, 18 miles from the capital, may become a crucial battle-field. A government defeat there might lay Madrid open to new frontal attack. It is the key to the communication lines within the wedge the government has driven into the insurgent lines.

Insurgent communiques said Generalissimo Francisco Franco's forces took more than 40 miles in the Al-barracin sector of the Teruel front, east of Madrid.

A government report said a new defense line was being organized in Cuenca province to resist the insurgent drive, aimed at severing auxiliary communication roads between Madrid and Valencia.

Barcelona counted at least 65 dead and 150 wounded after eight insurgent planes made the worst air raid of the civil war on the capital of autonomous Catalonia at dawn Sunday.

Great Britain, making possibly her last effort, struggled to preserve Europe's non-intervention plan to isolate the war in Spain. British officials drafted a questionnaire to determine whether their compromise neutrality proposals could break a "hands off Spain" deadlock.

REFUND FROM OLD RAIL PENSION ACT

A number of Missouri Pacific employees, D. H. Robinson, assistant superintendent and others who received their pay checks a couple of days before the main pay roll, have received a refund of money paid into the railroad pension fund. Other employees, those in the shops and on other railroad work in the city, may receive their checks with the regular pay checks Tuesday, or if not then, later in the week.

The refund amounts to 3½ per cent of their salaries which was the amount paid into the fund, under the old retirement act, from February 16, 1936 until January 1, 1937, and the difference between 3½ per cent and 2 3/4 per cent from January 1 until July 1. Under the new retirement act they will pay 2 3/4 per cent, effective July 1.

The total sum being refunded in Sedalia, while not yet definitely known here, will amount to thousands of dollars.

COMMITTEE TO TAKE NEW COURT BILL UP TUESDAY

Forecast Drafters Will Complete Their Work
By Nightfall

SPECULATE ON NEW JUSTICE

Latest Mentioned as Possible Vandenberg Successor LaFollette

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(AP)—A senate judiciary subcommittee completed today draft of a bill to re-organize lower court procedure. It is a substitute for the rejected Roosevelt court bill.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Chairman McCarran (Nev.) forecast today a senate judiciary subcommittee drafting a bill to alter lower court procedure would complete its work by nightfall.

He said the subcommittee had agreed to leave out of the bill, which replaces the shelved administration court bill, any effort to regulate receiverships. This, he added, would be handled in a separate measure.

Chairman Ashurst (D-Ariz.) said he had called the full committee together tomorrow to take up the new court bill.

Democratic Leader Barkley (D-Ky.) told newspapermen, however, he had made no change in the senate's program for the week and planned to go ahead with the wage and hour bill.

Barkley's plan of senate procedure would mean the court bill would have to wait until the wage-hour measure was up to the regular session. Senator Borah (R-Ida.), chief backer of the proposal to regulate receivership procedure, indicated he was satisfied to handle it as a separate bill.

Ashurst forecast the court bill would "receive the approval of practically all senators."

Senator Connally (D-Tex.) quickly questioned Ashurst's reference to a compromise bill, asserting it was no compromise.

"I withdraw that," Ashurst said. "It is not a compromise bill at all. The word was used improperly."

Speculate on Filling Vacancy
The general expectation that President Roosevelt will fill the supreme court vacancy before adjournment of congress renewed speculation today over his possible choice.

The latest name mentioned in the capital was that of Senator Robert La Follette (Prog-Wis). The 42-year-old senator and his brother, Gov. Phil La Follette of Wisconsin, accompanied Mr. Roosevelt on a week-end cruise down the Potomac.

Nothing was said on their return last night to indicate whether a successor to Justice Van Devanter, who retired in June, had been discussed.

Many Washingtonians have expressed the belief Mr. Roosevelt might promote a federal circuit or district judge to the high court.

Judge Sam Bratton of New Mexico, Learned Hand of New York, and William Denham of San Francisco are among those mentioned.

The names of two Democratic senators—Wagner of New York and Logan of Kentucky—also have entered public discussion. Assistant Attorney General Stanley Jackson, Solicitor General Stanley Reed, Chairman James M. Landis of the securities commission, and Justice Ferdinand Pecora of New York are others in the spotlight.

The fact that three New Yorkers—Chief Justice Hughes and Associate Justices Stone and Cardozo—already are on the bench led many to believe another man from that state would not be chosen.

Repeated hints were given during the court bill battle that some of the older justices—Sutherland and Brandeis in particular—might leave the bench as soon as that issue was settled.

The senate sidetracked the bill last Thursday, and a judiciary committee is drafting a non-controversial measure to speed up lower federal courts.

THREE ARRESTED ON BURGLARY CHARGE

Clyde Burnett, Harold Reed, Harvey Byrd and Earl Johnson are held in the county jail after being arrested this morning on a charge of burglary and larceny of the home of E. D. Payne, about ten miles northeast of Sedalia. They will be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Bell Hutchinson late this afternoon or Tuesday morning.

Burnett, first to be arrested by Constable Forrest Pindexter, made a confession, according to that officer, and implicated the three other men, to breaking into the home of Payne and stealing light fixtures from five rooms and also stealing about 1,500 pounds of scrap iron off the farm.

The stolen articles were sold to junk dealers in Sedalia it was reported.

SLOW IN CALLING FOR DIVIDEND CHECKS

W. L. Koenig, receiver for the Sedalia National Bank believes that times are good. At least he knows that there are many checks, dividend payments of the Sedalia National National Bank, which have not been called for.

Of the 1,759 dividend checks less than half have been called for to date, and unless they are distributed by July 30 they must be sent to the treasury department in Washington, D. C.

The amounts vary, some are nice sized amounts, others small, nevertheless they are money and those in charge are wondering why more people do not call for them. Some of the prior dividend checks still remain uncalled for.

COLLINS RELIEF FUND MAY REACH $2,000

The total amount in the Collins relief fund to date is $1,937.35, which is exclusive of the hospital, nurses and doctors bills to be paid by the city. This amount may be increased to $2,000, or near that amount by proceeds from a benefit dance to be given at convention hall, Liberty park, Thursday night, July 29, if it is largely attended.

FARM TENANCY AID PROGRAM TO THE SOUTH FIRST

Efforts to Get It Under Way Early Next Month
Being Made

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Farm administration officials said today they hope to have the tenancy aid program under way early next month.

The name "Farm Security Administration" has been selected tentatively for the organization in charge. Efforts will be made to get it operating soon after his return of Secretary Wallace, now on vacation.

President Roosevelt signed last week the bill authorizing the agriculture department to embark on a long-time program to turn nearly 3,000,000 tenant farmers into land owners.

The bill allows $10,000,000 this year for loans to tenants to purchase farms, $25,000,000 in the 1939 fiscal year and $50,000,000 annually thereafter. It also authorizes $10,000,000 this year and $20,000,000 each in 1939 and 1940 with which the department may purchase and retire from cultivation land unsuited for crops.

Tenants in southern and mid-western states will be the first to receive assistance, officials said, since the program will be begun in the states with the greatest population and the highest percentage of farm tenancy.

Selection of the individuals to be helped and the land to be purchased will be left largely in the hands of county committees of farmers familiar with local conditions.

The tenancy program will set the government to dealing with land problems from an angle widely different from its historic position.

During the last 10 years the federal government gave away about 280,000,000 acres of land to homesteaders. Much of the land today is being operated by tenants.

The government's task now is to buy up almost as large an area, at the rate of 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 acres per year, return much of it to forests, recreation areas and game preserves, and to settle the tenants on better land.

TOPEKA, July 26.—Albert M. Zakourpa, under sentence to be hanged August 17 for the murder of his wife, Esther, at Paola, Kas., on December 1, 1935, was granted a 30-day reprieve and a hearing for commutation of his sentence by Gov. Walter A. Huxman today.

Zakourpa was the first to be assessed the death penalty under the capital punishment law enacted by the legislature three years ago.

SHOT FROM AMBUSH WHILE DISCUSSING MARRIAGE

CAMPBELL, Mo., July 26.—(AP)—Carroll Slaughter, 26, farmer, was shot from ambush and seriously injured last night as he sat in his automobile with Miss Irene Minks, his fiancée, discussing plans for their marriage scheduled for today.

Two bullets from a .22 calibre rifle passed through the man's neck. Doctors who treated him said Slaughter will probably recover.

Slaughter was unable to explain the shooting, according to Sheriff Dewey Miles who is investigating the case.

FURTHER SHOWERS HELP GROWING CORN

Corn and forage crops, together with pasturage have this year been excellent in strong contrast to a year ago when under a blazing sun the temperatures daily over the hundred mark growing corn wilted and dried up with not a semblance of an ear on it. Pastures were seared and bare and the effects of one of the severest droughts experienced in this section were being felt.

Water was being hauled for livestock as ponds, small streams, springs and wells went dry. There was no moisture for a long period.

This year conditions are exceptionally promising for a generous corn crop and the fields are tasseling with the large cornsilk beginning to form and some fields have started to form husks to protect the grain as it develops.

This morning at 7 o'clock the temperature was 64 degrees above zero and on Sunday the maximum was 84 degrees, in contrast to 107 degrees July 25 a year ago.

July 26, 1936 the temperature was 105 degrees and on July 27 it reached 108 degrees.

A refreshing shower in the early Sunday morning measured 17 of an inch and following a half inch rain Friday night gave additional moisture. Nights have been cool and comfortable for repose and relaxation and even when rain has not been on the weather man's chart heavy dew have refreshed and helped late gardens and forage crops.

TAMMANY HALL CHIEFTAIN, J. J. DOOLING, DIES

End Comes as Bitter Struggle Waged Over
Mayoral Nominee

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 26.—James J. Dooling, Tammany Hall chieftain, died of a stroke today at his home in Belle Harbor, Queens.

Dooling, 44, had been in ill health for months. He was one of the youngest men ever to rise to leadership of Tammany.

He had a stroke last winter and had had numerous lesser ones in recent months.

His family was with him when he died.

Dooling's death came in the midst of the bitterest struggle in Tammany's long history.

An anti-New Dealer, Dooling backed as a candidate for New York's mayoralty next fall United States Senator Royal S. Copeland, New Deal foe, although leaders of the four county Democratic organizations, New Deal sympathizers, agreed on Grover A. Whalen as candidate.

In a bitter fight Dooling, although ailing and hardly able at times to stay in his office, managed to put through Copeland as Tammany candidate for the mayoralty primaries against a revolt of Whalen sympathizers.

Immediately after his victory, Whalen backers commenced a drive to take his leadership away from him. Dooling, although dying, responded by appealing organizations in up of pro-Copeland in the city not controlled by Tammany.

Dooling was unmarried but closely attached to his relatives, especially his three sisters.

William P. Kennealy, chairman of the executive committee of Tammany Hall, automatically succeeded to the leadership of the organization by virtue of his office. He will hold office until the executive committee selects a permanent leader.

No comment was forthcoming immediately from Tammany members on what effect Dooling's death would have on the approaching mayoral campaign.

Dooling came into his leadership several years ago as victor in an

HIP FRACTURED IN AUTO COLLISION

Martin Scott, 312 Walnut street, Jefferson City, received fracture of the left hip, about 12:15 o'clock this afternoon when his car, a model A Ford, and a Chevrolet coupe driven by Mrs. William Shay of Nelson, collided at the Broadway and Limit junction of highways 65 and 50.

Mr. Scott was taken to the Bothwell hospital where he is receiving medical attention.

According to a report made to State Highway Patrolman Paul E. Cool, Scott was driving east on Highway 50 towards Jefferson City, while Mrs. Shay was said to be driving west on Highway 50 and started to make a left turn onto highway 65.

Both cars were slightly damaged. Two small children riding with Mrs. Shay were not injured.

CLEVELAND, July 26.—At least one man was killed and several persons were injured late today in a clash between strikers and workers at Republic Steel Corp.'s Corrikan-McKinney plant. All available police squads were rushed to the plant's gates, where rioting earlier in the day had dealt injuries to 29 persons, including two policemen.

CLEVELAND, July 26.—All available policemen were ordered to Republic Steel Corp.'s Corrikan-McKinney plant today a few hours after a riot there in which two policemen and 29 pickets and strike sympathizers had been injured.

CLEVELAND, July 26.—Steel strike violence broke out anew today. At least 20 persons were injured in rioting at Republic Steel Corporation's Corrikan-McKinney plant in Cleveland; 11 were arrested.

Clashes occurred when police broke through CIO picket lines.

Tom Glowacki, 51-year-old picket, suffered critical injuries when he was run down by a car containing four men trying to enter the plant.

Two policemen were hurt. Some 1,000 strikers and sympathizers, witnesses said, massed around one of the approaches to the plant's main entrance. About 100 officers, many on horses and on motorcycles, attempted to clear a path.

At first only boos and cat calls came from the crowd but as more cars carrying non-strikers passed through the line rocks flew from the strikers, police said.

In melées which followed, Mounted Patrolman Rowley Oker was hit in the back of the head. He was remounted and charged a crowd of 300 on the sidewalk, witnesses said, bringing his night stick down on the head of a striker, Matilda Mhuons, 25, who collapsed.

After the violence, the strikers marched on City Hall in a mass protest against police action. Their ranks swelled and the milling crowd was estimated as numbering 5,000 persons.

A committee of 15 carried a protest to Mayor Harold H. Burton.

"I'll fill St. Alex's hospital with you people today if you don't get out of here," James Quinn, financial director of the CIO steel workers organizing committee, quoted Police Inspector Martin A. Horrigan as saying. Horrigan denied making the statement.

One of those arrested was William Johnson, said by police to be the driver of the car which ran down Glowacki. Held for questioning, he said he lost control of his car when rocks were hurled breaking two windows, and that he then drove into the crowd surrounding him.

Smaller groups of pickets were on duty at the four other gates leading into the plant. While most

LEGAL GUNS ON POULTRY RACKET

NEW YORK, July 26.—Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Jacob J. Rosenblum, Dewey's chief aide, said Herbert has dominated the poultry industry for the last 12 years, a domination assured, he added, when Herbert was elected business agent of the union for life at a $10,400 yearly salary.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Congressional leaders arranged today for immediate senate consideration of the wage and hours bill as the first step in winding up the session.

A bill by Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) to limit the length of freight trains was at the top of the senate calendar.

Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky.) said, however, that if it was not disposed of by late afternoon he would have it laid aside for the labor standards measure.

The remainder of the legislative schedule which the administration wants congress to enact before going home was not disclosed.

Congressional leaders conferred this morning on the legislative situation. Later Speaker Bankhead said no decision had been reached on what items are to be pushed. Bankhead added he could not see an adjournment of congress within ten days or two weeks.

Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky told the senate conferences with regard to congressional adjournment were under way, but he could not yet discuss the legislative program in detail.

He made the statement after being questioned by Republican Leader McNary of Oregon, who has come out for an early adjournment.

Barkley discussed the legislative program with President Roosevelt during the week-end cruise. He said before the trip, he thought legislation for low cost housing, for plugging tax loopholes and for speeding up lower federal courts should be enacted.

JOBS FOR THE UNDERTAKER

Four out of every five automobile accidents occur on dry roads in clear weather. Four out of every five automobile accidents involve cars driving straight ahead.

Here is the statistical proof of the disregard for every rule of courtesy and safety that characterizes the reckless or incompetent motorist. He constantly overestimates the "safety factors" of good roads and modern cars. A straight highway and a clear day act as bait to make him "open her up"—with the result that the undertaker gets about 37,000 new accounts each year.

A National Safety Council survey lists the seven most important causes of fatal accidents, in order, as follows: Exceeding speed limit or driving too fast for road and weather conditions; driving on the wrong side of the road; disregarding stop signs and signals; usurping right of way; cutting in; passing on hills and curves; failure to signal for stopping and turning.

These driving errors cause the great bulk of all serious accidents, and the first is by far the worst. Every one of them is a human error—and every accident they produce could be prevented if individual drivers would observe the most elementary rules of caution and proper driving.

In conclusion, here is one more fact you might think over next time you feel the urge to step on it: At 20 miles per hour, one accident in 61 is fatal, while at 50 or more miles per hour, one accident in every 11 produces a corpse.

EXAMINE SMALL BOYS' POCKETS

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Pieces of wire, tiny books—sample title, "Life of the Party"—paper clips, marbles, bottle tops, pencil stubs, combs, magazine clippings—

Yes, that's what little boys are made of. Also match covers, nuts and bolts, chains, pieces of string, penknives, toy handkerchiefs and mouth organs.

Those are the things which tumble from pockets of small boys between the ages of 6 and 18 at four Philadelphia playgrounds and Recreation association playgrounds and tot lots one day recently. It was a special event, and the children weren't supposed to know that they would be asked to empty their pockets.

One or two of them had heard whisperings, however, and entered into what they thought was the spirit of the thing. Donald Morgan, 12 years old, came to the Friends' playground hardly able to walk. The six pockets of his dungarees were loaded with everything he could find. Scrap metal, wire, string, buttons and bottle tops predominated. Donald was disqualified when he confessed that he had come especially prepared.

More typical were the contents of the pockets of 12-year-old Stephen Pokotilow at the Blankenburg tot lot. He had a magazine clipping showing what happens when you sneeze, two match covers, a piece of metal, a key which did not fit anything, a strap for his skates, which he had not used since April, a buckle for a belt now lost, and a pencil. Why? Stephen hasn't the faintest idea—"I just like to have something to carry," was as near as he could come to an explanation.

TRAGEDY FROM GOSSIP

From the Ohio State Journal.

A Louisiana girl is dead and another is in jail, accused of having committed murder by shooting, and authorities say the tragedy grew out of neighborhood gossip and rumor. There had been, the sheriff declares, "some talk about one of the girls" which led to a cow pasture melee with the two mothers and the two girls engaged therein, and later the shooting.

Rumor, often baseless, has ruined many a career, and gossip, freely going the rounds, has set many a neighbor at a grudge with another neighbor. These whisperings grow until they become outright shoutings, and they are enlarged upon with each repeating.

Once it was customary to blame the women for doing most of the gossiping, but men are not so all-fired innocent at that. From a mere rumor perhaps with no truth at all in it, at club, on the street or even at church, the gossip, repeated to another and then another, grows like a huge snowball in winter.

TREASURE IN PANAMA

The discovery in Panama of 6,000 pounds of pure gold bars, presumably hidden since the days of the early Spaniards, recalls the enormous riches which Spain drew from that territory. It is said, recounts the Carthage Press, that many of the wealthy families of Spain have lived from then until the present on the interest of this loot of the Americas taken home at this time after being wrung from the soil by enslaved Indians or African Negroes.

An account of the third voyage of Sir Francis Drake—a marauding expedition against the Spaniards—tells of that doughty Englishman and his men finding in the town of Nombre de Dios after its capture "a pile of bars of silver of, as near as we could guess, 70 feet in length, of ten feet in breadth, and 12 feet in height, piled up against the wall, each bar between 35 and 40 pounds in weight."

But all that Drake's men had of this was the sight of it.

But the Spanish soldiers were by now pressing hard on the English, Drake was wounded, and despite all the treasure the marauders escaped from Nombre de Dios only with their lives.

But there was other treasure than this, and the English would not go home empty handed.

Months later—on April 1, 1573—near Nombre de Dios, on the road between that town and Panama City, Drake laid in wait very successfully for treasure-laden "recuas" or trains of pack mules.

"There came three recuas, one of 50 mules, the other two of 70 each, every one of which carried 300 pounds weight of silver; which in all amounted to about 30 tons."

All this was taken after a skirmish, and would seem to have been loot worth lugging off, but there was also gold in the pack train, so much that it was all the marauders could carry. They buried the silver and made off with the gold, later returning only to discover the Spanish had found where the silver was hidden and had recovered it.

The history of Panama is full of tales like this. There were many raids on the Spanish owners of treasure. At one time or another, or for one reason or another, it is probable that much gold and much silver were buried and in many cases the hiders must have died before they had a chance to retrieve it.

No wonder the people down there occasionally find treasure hidden in the earth.

But the real wealth to be gained now from the soil of Panama is not buried Spanish treasure. The treasure ships which sail from Panama today are freighted with golden bananas.

ALONG THE ROAD BACK

From Springfield News and Leader.

Hawk-eyed business observers, watching the signs of the times, have found more proof that the nation is enroute to recovery in the report that variety store sales of June, 1937, reached a new high level for the depression period.

Variety stores include those which sell goods at from five cents to a dollar an item. Sales of 11 leading chains showed an average gain of 2.8 percent over June, 1936, when soldiers' bonus spending reached its peak.

The barometers for prosperity usually are sought in heavy industries and transportation because they reflect manufacturers' confidence in future buying. But when people start putting spare pennies, nickels and dimes into purchases instead of the sideboard sugar bowl, that's almost a sure sign that "depression" is no longer the fearful word it used to be.

A search of cells in a prairie lock-up turned up a chisel, 13 hacksaw blades and a home-made poem.

Some husbands get away with it for years, ducking the embarrassing question with "Now don't let it worry your pretty head."

Sandy and Marcia met quite by accident near the home of the girl's grandmother in southern California. He is an advertising executive who has just established his own firm and she is a talented commercial artist. Both are on vacation. A week later it's romance of their engagement. Marcia learns her office has been trying to reach her. Sandy is hurt when he calls Los Angeles before telling her grandmother of their love.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 7

"LET ME kiss you, Sandy," Grandma said promptly on hearing the news of the engagement. "I'm proud that we're to have you in our family. I couldn't have chosen better myself!" She smiled mischievously as they both recalled that events had, indeed, been in her own hands up until that time. "But what's the trouble? You're not jealous of Marcia's job, are you? You know that's been her only love for so long, it's going to be hard to wean her away from it. Patience, it takes—and a heart full of love."

If Marcia had stepped into her role properly at that moment, the clouds would have passed. But when she bounded out into the little sun porch, her eyes were flaming with excitement, her head high in pride.

"Old Abe is trying to land a big account and he wants me to rush back and work up the art and even supervise copy. I'm to plan the campaign from start to finish, and I begin right away," she cried, happily. "Why, Sandy, I can go back with you!"

She turned joyfully to the man, then stopped as if she'd been hit. "What is it—aren't you glad for me? Isn't everybody glad on this beautiful day? I get a real plum of an assignment and find the Only Man—all in one afternoon. It's too—"

"Yes, it's too, too divine," he mused in a sarcastic tone. "Your job, then me. Is it always to be like that, Marcia? Because I'm a jealous cuss, and anything that comes between you and me—well, if it were a man I'd know what to do. But this—"

He spread his hands helplessly, then dropped his voice to a tone of pleading. "Come along, honey. Call up the old buzzard, and tell him you need this time to yourself, to get ready for our wedding day."

"But, Sandy, I can't. Why, this is the chance I've been waiting for. It means everything—"

"EVERYTHING, eh?" He laughed out at that, pacing the room nervously. "So that's the way it is," he continued, working himself into a frenzy.

"Marcia, you don't know anything about love except what you put in your gosh-darned ads," he blurted inelegantly. "You just turn it on when old Abe says 'allure' or 'romance.' You're probably the one who thought up the idea that 'he was fascinated until she opened her mouth'—"

"And that's about enough from you. You opened your mouth too far that time, my fine feathered friend. You'd better fly home, before I get George's shot gun and puncture your ego!"

Sandy grabbed his hat and without a backward glance stalked out of the bright little room and then started on a fast dogtrot down the roadway.

"Sandy behaved like a school-boy," Marcia said a minute later, after she could collect her wits. "If he'd just held on for a minute we would have straightened the whole thing out. He can't expect me to fall into his arms like an over-ripe apple. Why, dozens of girls keep on working after they're married!"

"Yes, but Sandy hasn't loved any of the dozens he has met," Grandma said sensibly. "He wants just one special woman, to fit his particular ideal of a wife."

"Well, he can't put me up on a pedestal with a lot of old fogies. What a bust I'd be!" Marcia purred rather feebly. "If he'd waited to talk it over sensibly, I might—no, to be honest, I don't think I would have given up this chance to handle that Char-Ming account. I've had my eye on it for a year, and there's no reason I should forfeit it now. That isn't my idea of love, real love."

Marcia, still in her riding clothes, was seated on the window seat, her hands nervously rumpling her bronze locks. Her grandmother, watching her lovingly, shook her head in despair.

"Love very often is demanding, my dear. You have to sacrifice something in order to keep it. For Cupid is a fickle fellow. He flies out the window just as fast as he flies in. Maybe faster."

"But, Grandma, I wouldn't mind sacrificing something if it were necessary. But this isn't. Sandy is just selfish, or jealous, and neither is a worthy emotion."

Marcia didn't stop to think that her own ambitions weren't exactly unselfish. She wouldn't need the money, nor would the glory do her any special good, once she was married. It was the new problem of home versus the adventuresome exciting life of business, and Marcia wasn't yet ready to settle down.

Observing that her grandmother was seriously upset over the trend of events, Marcia walked slowly upstairs and decided to call a truce—to go to see Sandy and tease him out of his stubborn mood.

Whistling through her teeth, she stepped gingerly beneath the cold spray. The immersion seemed to clear her brain of the turmoil of the sudden quarrel, and she vigorously scrubbed her back with the long-handled brush while she formulated her "armistice address."

"Now, my husband-to-be, we mustn't be hasty. Give little Marcia her fling and—"

Not a fling. It was something more serious than that, she realized when she tried to analyze her emotions. She'd spent a lifetime preparing to win her spurs in advertising. It wasn't just a game or a pleasant pastime. It was a profession, something that held serious ideals and offered her a real chance to express herself. With her thoughts marshaled in neat little lines, Marcia dressed carefully then headed the imaginary procession for the camp where Sandy was quartered.

Rounding the corner where the makeshift camp was established, she heard a screeching of brakes and yipping of frightened dogs. Then the low-slung gray roadster tore out of the clearing and WASHINGTON — All the talk about Washington weather as the motive for adjournment of Congress is pure poppycock. The weather has been no worse than in 1935, when Congress sat all summer—in fact, recent weather has been delightful.

Moreover, Congress has not overtaxed itself with work. It is true that Congress has been in session a long time—7½ months. But being in session and actually working are two different things. During this 7½ month period, the Senate has sat only 100 times, and frequently for not more than an hour. The House has met 180 times, sometimes for very short periods.

In other words, out of 7½ months the Senate has been on the job a little over 3 months and the House about six.

Actually, the adjournment under the congressional blanket is not physical exhaustion, but political cowardice.

Real fact is that most of the boys don't want to vote on such issues as wage-hour regulation, farm tenancy relief, housing, taxation, government reorganization. Privately they are against these measures, but if put on the spot would not dare vote against them. So they wait to duck a showdown and go home.

Note: Senators and Congressmen are paid $10,000 a year no matter how long or how short a time they spend in Washington.

Behind Governor Lehman's blast against the President's Supreme Court bill was his wife, the former Edith Altschul.

Mrs. Lehman is the sister of Frank Altschul, member of Lazard Freres, international bankers, and chairman of the listing committee of the New York Stock Exchange. Partly because of the influence of her brother, she always has been cool toward the New Deal.

Also, Mrs. Lehman tried to persuade her husband not to run for a third term last year. But under the vigorous urging of Roosevelt and Senator Bob Wagner, Lehman entered the race. The result was not nearly so good as in previous years.

drafted a statement, but was persuaded by members of his staff to withhold it.

Tail Phenagling
The Barkley-Harrison tussle for the Senate leadership saw more undercover phenagling than the Capitol has witnessed in many a year.

Knowing that the ballot would be secret, some of the boys were free and easy with their promises of support. The Barkley camp had 42 definite pledges, Harrison 38. The combined total of these promises was 80—and there are only 75 Democrats in the Senate.

Barkley was elected by a count of 38 to 37. That means that at least four of his pledges did not materialize, while one of Harrison's ran out.

Friends of Harrison privately are tagging Utah's Senator William King with responsibility for the Mississippi's defeat. The charge may be unfair, but they are hanging it on him. They say that King, who stood next in line as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, became incensed at Harrison because of his statement that he would not relinquish the chairmanship if elected floor leader.

The President had specifically requested this of Harrison, and Pat assured Roosevelt he would hold on to the chairmanship. King publicly said this would be okay with him, but Harrison intimates are hinting that privately King was very sore and vented his ire by secretly voting for Barkley.

Whether or not King did so only he can tell, but Harrison suffered two other losses that unquestionably played a determining role in the outcome.

One was the failure of his Mississippi colleague, "The Man" Bilbo, to support him. Bilbo and Harrison have been at odds since the winter of 1936, when they split over a federal judgeship Bilbo tried to defeat Harrison last year, even going to the extent of supporting a long-time foe. The night before the leadership ballot, friends of Harrison urged him to ask Bilbo for his vote. His reply was, "I'll be damned if I will."

The second defection was the unexpected last-minute switch of Senator William Dietrich. The Illinoisan had promised Harrison to back him, but several hours before the caucus he walked into his office and said: "Pat, it breaks my heart to say it, but I can't vote for you. I like you but I am for the President and I can't go along with the anti-Administration crowd that is supporting you."

Harrison assured him he appreciated his frankness and they shook hands.

Teapot Dome Exposer
The appointment of John D. Erwin as U. S. Minister to Honduras takes from the Washington press corps the man who wrote the first story exposing the Teapot Dome oil scandal.

On April 17, 1932, Erwin, then correspondent for The New York Evening World, published the details of the leasing of the valuable naval oil reserve by Albert B. Fall, then Secretary of the Interior. The elder Senator Bob LaFollette, conducting an investigation into gasoline prices, tried to probe the facts reported in Erwin's story but was balked on the ground that his authority did not cover it.

It was not until two years later that the late Senator Tom Walsh succeeded in forcing a complete airing of the scandal. Erwin supplied him with much of the information on which Walsh based his demand for an investigation.

Another major newspaper coup by Erwin was an exhaustive expose of congressional nepotism and payroll grafting. Giving names and figures, his revelations resulted in the defeat of several Congressmen.

Erwin began his Washington career as secretary to four successive Tennessee Senators. After eight years service with The Evening World he became head of the Washington bureau of The Nashville Tennessean, with which he continued until his elevation to the diplomatic corps.

The drive that is put out in radio advertising for medical products is a revelation of the extent to which most people lead ignorant and fear-ridden lives, but it is also an indication of how mere words can induce people into a physical state of illness which causes them to seek many forms of physical treatment.

Such people like a name for their illness. And the proper name may make all the difference in their progress and the form of treatment they employ. "Acidosis" is plainly a far more formidable thing than a "simple bilious attack." You begin to get better immediately if you have only a bilious attack. You treat yourself by using some soda or other alkalis, and by staying off rich, fatty food. "Acidosis" suggests a profound disturbance of the chemical organisms, and demands prolonged treatment by a specialist.

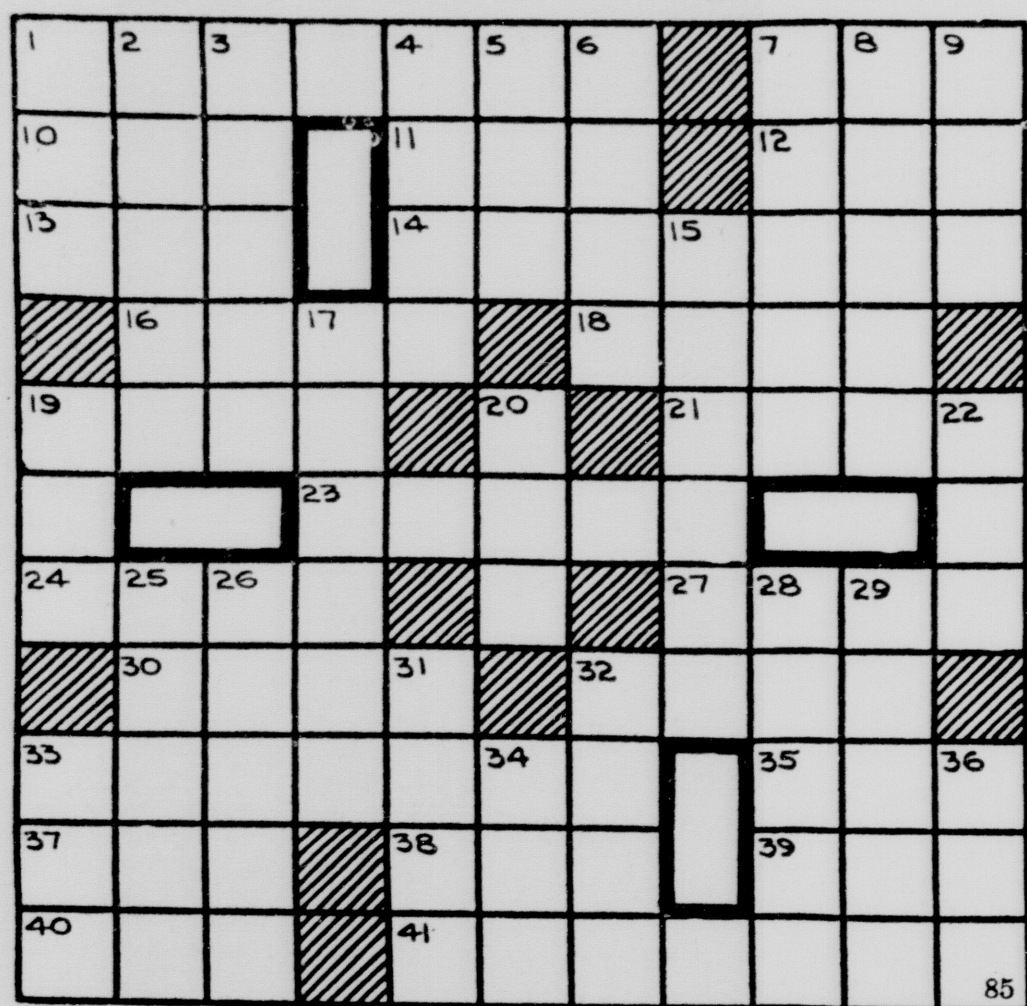

"I had a patient who stuttered," writes Dr. Dent. "He also played a fiddle. A thoughtless friend complimented him on his playing and then said: 'Isn't it lucky you never stutter on the fiddle?' Of course, this suggestion was taken, and it was some months before his fiddle stuttering ceased."

NO DEFINITE CLUE TO FATE OF CLOSE

By The Associated Press.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 26.—The search for missing Morris B. Close, Rochester scoutmaster, continued without a clue today, six days after the youth disappeared while en route from Albany to his home here.

Police of two states, detectives, Boy Scouts, and operatives of a national automobile underwriters' detective agency tried to piece together the strange tale of the youth whose clothing was found on a man slain near Kingdom City, Mo.

New York state police and the scouts searched the country surrounding the Cherry Valley highway between Albany and Rochester while sheriff's deputies in Missouri pressed a search for the slayer, of a man who wore Close's clothing. The identity of the slain man also was a mystery.

Missouri authorities theorized that Close, who was known to pick up hitch hikers, was waylaid and robbed of his automobile and clothing and possibly slain.

The scoutmaster disappeared after he left his fiancée's home in Albany last Monday night. Miss Dorothy Cole, his fiancée, said she had a premonition of disaster just before Close left her home.

GENERAL SHOWERS OVER THE STATE

ST. LOUIS, July 26.—Continued cool temperatures and fair weather throughout Missouri tonight and tomorrow were predicted today by the U. S. weather bureau after a comfortable week-end marked by maximum temperatures in the high 70's and 80's and some rainfall.

Only one maximum reading of over 90 was recorded Sunday—92 degrees at Lamar. Other maximums ranged from 76 to 88 degrees. Minimums were recorded down to 55 degrees. Only traces of rain fell Sunday at Booneville, Hannibal, Lamar, Poplar Bluff and West Plains after general showers over the state Saturday night.

Roscoe Nunn, weather bureau forecaster, said extreme southeast Missouri may expect cooler temperatures tonight while somewhat warmer weather is expected tomorrow in the west and north portions of the state.

Mystery In Floating Corpses Down Haiho River In North China

TIENSIN, North China, July 24.—(AP)—Officially, no one knows why more than 300 bodies of unidentified Chinese coolies were found floating down the Haiho river here last summer, or why 150 more have been found this summer.

This, in a nutshell, is Tientsin's great "floating corpse mystery."

It is still classed as a mystery. Most observers believe, only because it is a grisly by-product of a great international narcotic traffic.

Tientsin, thriving crossroads of Far Eastern dope dealing, has recently been called the narcotic capital of the world.

Subjects involving this huge international racket are best left alone by Chinese authorities hampered by extra-territorial treaties, are rarely mentioned by the Japanese whom Chinese claim are responsible, and are seldom referred to in anything but confidential official reports by consular and diplomatic officials of other countries.

Unofficially, however, evidence has been pieced together to indicate that many of the victims were narcotic addicts who had been dumped into the river, perhaps before death, to save burial expenses.

Several Chinese coolies were arrested recently when caught carrying the bodies of narcotic addicts toward the river from the Japanese concession, where hundreds of small narcotic shops exist beyond the reach of Chinese authority.

In one case the victim was still alive, and was able to gasp out the story of his migration from a village in the interior in search of work, his learning to use narcotics, and his gradual enfeeblement in dope dens.

As death neared he was turned over to the pre-mortuary pall bearers to be consigned to the Haiho for a charge of 12 cents. The cheapest coffin in Tientsin costs at least 50 cents, and if a man dies it is Chinese custom that the owner of the property he dies on must pay his funeral expenses.

While this man's case may not have been typical, the sensation his story caused was followed by a wholesale cleanup campaign by the Japanese concession authorities.

While strenuously denying that Japanese had anything to do with the floating corpses, they rounded up hundreds of Chinese beggars and narcotic addicts who were hanging around Japanese and Korean narcotic dens and shunted them into the Chinese city.

More than 1,600 of these vagrants are now being fed and housed by the Chinese authorities. When the "floating corpse mystery" is brought to public attention, the practice suddenly slackened off. No more corpses floated up to the docks.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Love" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday August 1, 1937.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "I will mention the lovingkindnesses of the Lord, and the praises of the Lord, according to all that the Lord hath bestowed on us, and the great goodness toward the house of Israel, which he hath bestowed on them according to his mercies, and according to the multitude of his lovingkindnesses" (Isa. 63:7).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Love is impartial and universal in its adaptation and bestowals. It is the open fount which cries, 'Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters.' If we pray to God as a corporeal person, this will prevent us from relinquishing the human doubts and fears which attend such a belief, and so we cannot grasp the wonders wrought by infinite, incorporeal Love, to whom all things are possible" (p. 123).

The battle is on—Erl Roman, famous sportsman, vs. 600 lbs. of savage, fighting, blue marlin!

How would your nerves stand up to two hours of this?

ERL ROMAN LANDS A BIG ONE!

AQUAPLANE EXPERT. Miss Gloria Wheeden is a typical American outdoor girl. "Yes, I smoke," she says. "Like all my crowd, I enjoy Camels—especially at meal-times."

"WHEN I'M TIRED after a match or need extra energy, Camels give me a 'lift' in energy," says Joanna de Tuscan, U. S. Women's Foils Champion. "Camels do not make my throat harsh."

BENNY GOODMAN SWINGS IT EVERY TUESDAY NIGHT!

Tune in! Hear the trio—the quartette—and all of Benny's boys swing the popular favorites. Every Tuesday at 8:30 pm E.S.T. (9:30 pm E.D.S.T.), 7:30 pm C.S.T., 6:30 pm M.S.T., 5:30 pm P.S.T., over WABC-Columbia Network.

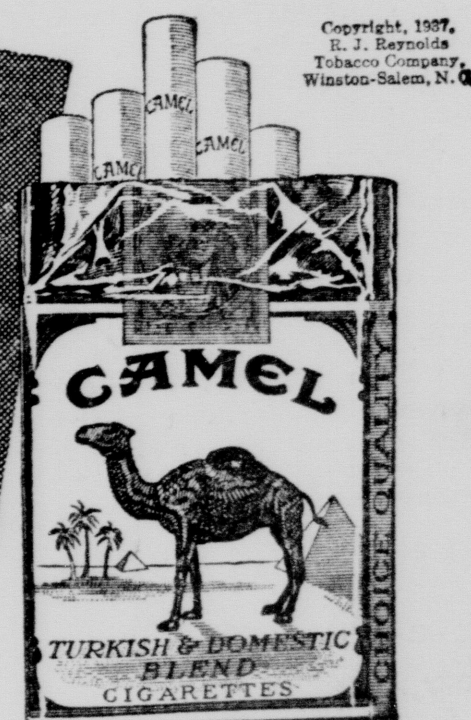

AS the Miami, Florida, "Herald" said of Erl Roman's struggle with the big fish (above): "The battle was tough. Erl had his hands full staying in the fishing chair." But a sporting spirit and healthy nerves kept Roman going. After a 2-hour fight, he landed the second-largest blue marlin ever taken on rod and reel. "Healthy nerves are necessary for keeping on top. Camels don't get on my nerves," Erl says. Above, right, Mr. Roman enjoys good digestion and a Camel after his tense fight. "I make it a point," he says, "to smoke Camels with my meals and after 'for digestion's sake.'"

Smooth Blending of Costly Tobaccos. Camels are made from costlier tobaccos, in a matchless blend. A mild, cigarette for steady smoking that does not rasp the throat or upset the nerves.

CAMELS NEVER GET ON YOUR NERVES

COSTLIER TOBACCOS Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS... Turkish and Domestic... than any other popular brand.

One Dead And A Score Injured In Cleveland Riot

of the rock hurling occurred at the main gate, it was at one of the other entrances that Glowacki was run down.

Since the reopenings of Corrigan-McKinney and Republic's three other Cleveland plants sporadic window smashing, assaults and other vandalism has occurred. State troops, on hand for the reopenings, were withdrawn recently.

This was the worst strike outbreak since July 11, when two men were killed and 15 injured in a police-strikers clash at a C. I. O. union headquarters in Massillon, O. That clash is being investigated by the national labor relations board.

Several hundred pickets and sympathizers were massed at the gates. Stones struck some of the plant's workers who were going off duty.

First hospital reports accounted for five injured.

Killed By Car in Mele
Hoots and catcalls came from the crowd, which one observer estimated at 2,000 to 3,000 as the squad cars of police arrived.

John Orecny, a C. I. O. striker, was struck and killed by a motor car in the melee. His death was the 16th attributable to strike violence since the C. I. O. called the walkout May 26.

It was the first strike death in Cleveland, and today's rioting marked the first major disturbance here since the strike was called and since Republic's four Cleveland mills reopened July 6.

Orecny was dead when an ambulance brought him to St. Alexis' hospital. His head had been battered.

“LIE DOWN” STRIKE BY STUDENTS
DAVENPORT, Ia. July 26.—Operations at the Durant, Ia. plant of the Pioneer Hi-bred Corn Company were back to normal today after a "lie-down" strike by college student workers collapsed a few hours after they left their jobs.

Joe Lower, branch manager, said only 19 students walked off the job yesterday, but strike leaders claimed between 35 and 40 of the 55 employed returned home after refusing to work for 30 cents an hour, plus room and board.

The company employs students from the state University of Iowa, Drake University, and Grinnell, Cornell, Simpson and other midwest colleges to detassel plants producing hybrid seed. The detasseling is done to prevent self-pollination.

Shortly after breakfast yesterday, a heavy rain fell and the youths refused to work in wet fields.

An agreement, including provision for a pay increase from 30 to 40 cents an hour, with 50 cents in rainy weather, was submitted to Lower. He countered with an offer of 40 cents an hour for Sunday work.

A spokesman for the insurgent group declared they had planned to remain on their cots until their demands were met by the manage-

OLD CAPTAIN BANS SHORTS ON EXCURSION BOAT
PROVINCETOWN, Mass., July 26.—(P)—Shorts are for sooties, not sailies, in the opinion of 85-year-old Capt. A. L. Kent, who has spent most of his life on the sea.

He issued an edict that he was banning shorts aboard the excursion boat Short Pier of the Boston-Provincetown line. Men who wear shorts, he said, could come aboard and visit, but if they want to ride they'll have to wear regular trousers. F. W. Lehman, Jr., of Des Moines, president of the company, said Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace is a small stockholder.

“LIE DOWN” STRIKE BY STUDENTS
DAVENPORT, Ia. July 26.—Operations at the Durant, Ia. plant of the Pioneer Hi-bred Corn Company were back to normal today after a "lie-down" strike by college student workers collapsed a few hours after they left their jobs.

Joe Lower, branch manager, said only 19 students walked off the job yesterday, but strike leaders claimed between 35 and 40 of the 55 employed returned home after refusing to work for 30 cents an hour, plus room and board.

The company employs students from the state University of Iowa, Drake University, and Grinnell, Cornell, Simpson and other midwest colleges to detassel plants producing hybrid seed. The detasseling is done to prevent self-pollination.

Shortly after breakfast yesterday, a heavy rain fell and the youths refused to work in wet fields.

An agreement, including provision for a pay increase from 30 to 40 cents an hour, with 50 cents in rainy weather, was submitted to Lower. He countered with an offer of 40 cents an hour for Sunday work.

A spokesman for the insurgent group declared they had planned to remain on their cots until their demands were met by the manage-

Sheriff W. L. Marlin stated that several years ago, during fair week, Stewart, one of whose aliases is Robert P. Poole, was picked up here, suspected with attempting to work a confidence game. He spent the night in jail and the next morning was ordered out of town. Marlin said that Stewart, then known as Poole, seemed very much concerned that his family might learn he had been in custody, but when his finger prints were sent to Washington and his record returned, they learned he had spent many nights in jails and prisons.

Tammany Hall
Chieftain, J. J.
Dooling, Dies

internal fight at one of Tammany's lowest periods as far as political prestige goes. Tammany had been ripped apart by the sensational disclosures of the Reabury investigation, followed by its political defeat by Mayor La Guardia.

On top of that, Tammany found itself in extreme disfavor with the national Democratic administration, and pro-New Dealers within Tammany, alarmed by loss of federal patronage tried unsuccessfully to oust Dooling months ago. He survived, but after the bitter fight had a severe stroke.

Friends and physicians urged him to retire. So did his political enemies. But Dooling refused.

Things came to a climax politically during the last fortnight. Leaders of the other four county Democratic organizations of the city (Tammany covers only the county of New York, or Manhattan) tried their best to get Dooling to agree to a pro-New Deal candidate. When he refused, they picked Grover A. Whalen, world's fair commission head.

Dooling then, with the advice and counsel of former Governor Alfred E. Smith, another New Deal foe, picked Senator Copeland as his favorite.

Three Way Split

A three way split developed. Jimmy Hines, powerful Harlem district leader of Tammany, friend of the New Deal, started a pro-Whalen revolt in Tammany Hall. Al Marinelli, another district leader, from the lower East Side, backed Borough President Samuel Levy of Manhattan.

Dooling surprised all by obtaining support of Marinelli, whose backing, with those district leaders loyal to Dooling, was enough to defeat the Whalen forces in the Tammany show down.

Political observers said Dooling and Smith selected Copeland, whom they said was especially attractive to conservative Republicans as an anti-New Deal coalition candidate. The success of their strategy showed itself last week, when Kenneth Simpson, Manhattan organization Republican leader, announced the head of his slate was left open, presumably for Copeland, although he had picked two of La Guardia's chief allies as running mates for city-wide offices.

This action aroused La Guardia, and caused a split in the hitherto solid city fusion party, chief bulwark of La Guardia's support.

La Guardia's closest advisers now are reported urging him to ignore any possible help from the Republican organization and make his run for re-election as an independent.

Dooling is survived by three sisters, Misses Florence and Ethel Dooling, and Mrs. Thomas Howley.

Funeral services will be held

Thursday morning at Holy Cross church in Manhattan with interment at Calvary cemetery. Dooling's family asked that no flowers be sent to the house.

The youngest man to rise to the leadership of Tammany Hall in its 151 years of activity, Dooling won the job by leading the fight to oust the man his father helped to put into office.

Dooling, lawyer, war veteran and former star football and baseball player at Fordham University, arose from comparative obscurity.

Father Was Congressman
His father, Peter J. Dooling, ex-congressman and purchase commissioner of New York, died in 1931 and the son became leader in the southern part of the fifth assembly district in New York, a section his father had ruled for 31 years.

Dooling's bitter opposition to John F. Curry, Tammany leader, and opponent of Franklin D. Roosevelt's bid for the presidency, threw him into the political limelight in 1933. He joined Michael J. Kennedy and with him controlled the fifth district by recruiting young men to battle Curry. Appointed head of a committee of six, Dooling succeeded in ousting Curry and at 41 was elected to take his place.

It was the first time in Tammany history a leader had been ousted. The Wigman rocked with factional disputes for three months and Dooling was elected July 16, 1934, only when two leading candidates—Edward J. Ahearn and Stephen A. Ruddy—withdraw.

Postmaster General James A. Farley offered his support and stated President Roosevelt also favored Dooling. Tammany leaders saw a chance to gain much-needed federal patronage.

Tammany was at low ebb and the job facing Dooling was terrific. The Farley backing proved short lived and with federal patronage coming only in small dribbles Dooling's moves became numerous.

Dooling said Farley had failed to live up to his promises. He said he had refused to be Farley's rubber stamp. He got into further trouble by his friendship with Al Smith and when the former governor joined the American Liberty League and blasted the New Deal, Farley again started an ouster movement.

An illness, intestinal toxemia, followed by a stroke in July, 1935, next plagued Dooling and during his long absences from the Wigman his enemies worked for his ouster. When he returned to New York May 2, 1937, he announced he was well and would fight hard to retain his leadership. His sudden return to office surprised his enemies and the ouster move collapsed again.

He was born July 2, 1893, at 460 West 43rd street, a home his father had spent his lifetime. He left Fordham's law school when the war broke out and joined the 351st field artillery. He spent two and a half years in the army, eleven and a half months in France and seven months at the front lines at St. Mihiel and Metz.

He returned to Fordham, gained his law degree and set up offices. In 1933 he accepted the only political job he ever held—deputy public administrator at $5,000 per year. He resigned in 1932.

ANOTHER CHECK
CHARGE ON HAYNES

Roy Haynes, released last Sunday after serving thirty days in the county jail on a bad check charge, is named in a state warrant held by the sheriff, with issuing another bad check the afternoon of the day he was released.

The information charges Haynes with going to the Johns Lumber Company, purchasing approximately $5 worth of lumber which he said was for Tom Delph, and giving in payment a check for $18, signed with Delph's name. The signature, the information charges, is a forgery.

At the time Haynes was sentenced to the county jail in June he had been brought here from Lexington by Constable Pindexter, who had taken him in custody as he was released from the jail at Lexington, where he had served a sentence on a check charge. He has previously served two or more penitentiary sentences on similar charges.

DEALINGS SLOW ON STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 26.—(AP)—Backwardness of steel and motors clouded the silver lining of today's stock market and many recent leaders retreated behind minus signs.

A number of specialties displayed a disposition to tilt forward and numerous issues held the ground they won last week.

The stimulation of good earnings statements and the possibility congress will adjourn shortly, brokers thought, appeared to have faded somewhat. Many traders forsook the heated bidders for cooler emotions and dealings were comparatively slow.

Utilities lost their buoyancy and the majority of the rails were unable to get up steam. A few coppers revived.

Transfers were around 900,000 shares.

FLASHES OF LIFE IN LATE DISPATCHES

By The Associated Press.

Colored Skunks
EAST JAFFREY, N. H. — Pink skunks, not pink elephants, were hunted today by vacationists at Contooscook Park.

John Patterson reported his dog killed a skunk which had the usual black markings, but what should have been the white portion was shaded a delicate pink. Vacationists figured the "pinkies" were worth real money.

Out West

LINCOLN, Neb. — E. P. and W. A. Harrington, driving along Lincoln's main thoroughfare, sighted a coyote. They hurried away and got a gun, then returned and shot the animal.

Reinforcements

PLAMER, Neb. — Nebraskans welcomed another ally in their war on grasshoppers—this time the wasp. It stings the hoppers into paralysis and takes them to its nest, agriculturists said.

Bolt Out of The Black

KENDALLVILLE, Ind. — Lightning followed Mr. and Mrs. Howard Sherman to bed.

A bolt struck in their room, knocking plaster from the wall. Terror-stricken, they watched the lightning jump to their metal bed and pass through the bedposts, splintering the floor. Neither was injured.

NEW YORK, July 26. — "Little Lord Fauntleroy" is dead—a hero. Vivian Burnett, who spent a lifetime proving he was not a "sissy" as the fictional character portrayed in the famous novel by his mother, Frances Hodgson Burnett died after helping save four persons from drowning in the choppy waves of Manhattan Bay.

Burnett, 61, collapsed at the helm of his yawl Delight III yesterday after maneuvering it so that others on the boat could haul from the waters two men and two women whose sailboat had capsized. He was dead, apparently from a heart attack, before the yawl docked.

"Little Lord Fauntleroy" was written after Burnett, then 7, asked his mother to "write some books that little boys would like to read."

The book was an immense success, and a generation of American boys came to hate the "perfect little boy" whom their mothers held up as a pattern of conduct. They also hated the "sissified" big white Fauntleroy collar which imprisoned their young necks during a national vogue.

Burnett was a sophomore at Harvard when his mother disclosed in a magazine article that he had been the unwitting model in her novel. The rest of his days the "Fauntleroy" tag plagued him.

THREE LOSE LIVES ON RAILWAY TRESTLE

By The Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, July 26. — Two boys who narrowly escaped death when a locomotive ended a family outing in triple tragedy on a railroad trestle were to testify today at a coroner's inquest into the accident.

Sure-footed flight across the trestle the party was crossing Sunday in search of blackberries saved Eugene Brown, 11.

Eddie Wolff, 22, saved himself by swinging below the trestle, 30 feet above the creek bottom where lay the bodies of his and young Brown's mother and of the younger boy's uncle, mangled after the train had struck and tossed them there.

The dead mothers were Mrs. Joseph Brown, 46, and Mrs. John Wolff, 54, sisters-in-law, both of St. Louis.

The youths told authorities the dead man, Jack Brown, 38, probably could have saved himself if he had not turned to help Mrs. Brown, who fell between the ties as the party raced toward safety. They said they did not see the train strike.

The crew of the train will also testify, authorities said. The tragedy occurred on a St. Louis-San Francisco railway trestle about 20 miles south of St. Louis.

"No," said the proprietor of the wayside cafe, "I don't want any slot machines which include gambling." "That's quite all right," replied the traveling salesman. "These are not gambling machines. The customer hasn't a chance."
